Microsoft Access Runtime is a free version of Access that allows you to run Access applications including entering, deleting and modifying records. So, essentially it is designed for users to be able to use an application created by a developer with a full licence. It does not have any of the development and design tools of a full version of Access so you cannot make any changes to the design of an application and you can use the built-in menus or create your own queries or anything like that. From 2010 onwards Runtime comes in 2 versions: 64 bit and 32 bit. A 32 bit version will work on a 64 bit computer but the 64 bit version will not work on a 32 bit computer. All the Access applications available for download on our website work in 32 bit versions of MS Access. If you want to know about the benefits of using Microsoft Access in your business, you can read about these here. Access Runtime Downloads For a smoother download, the installation files for Access Runtime are inside .zip files. Once you have finished downloading the file, right-click on it and click on Extract All. Follow the instructions to extract contents of the .zip. Once done you will have a .exe file in the location you extracted the zip to. Double click on the .exe to begin installation. Please note that you should not install a run-time version of Access if you already have a full version installed as they may conflict. All Access Runtime files originally came from Microsoft and are distributed here with their permission. Software-Matters is a UK software development team situated in Gillingham in Dorset, close to the borders of Somerset, Wiltshire and Hampshire. Bournemouth, Poole, Southampton, Bristol, Bath and Salisbury are nearby cities. Deploying your MS Access 2010 databases to the web will require more than just Microsoft Access, as would be expected. Below you will find a summarized list of software requirements as published by Microsoft to date. No surprise here, the biggest excitement around Access 2010's Access Services feature is that your average users that need to view, query, or update information in your database won't need any more software installed but a browser. Anyone that will need to manage your database tables, forms, queries, and reports will need the full version of Microsoft Access 2010 (32- or 64-bit edition). That includes: Creating or editing table structures, relationships, and Access data macros Creating or editing Access web forms, Access web reports, and queries Designing and running complex queries Running any Visual Basic code Publishing Access 2010 forms to the web will require Microsoft Office Share Point Server 2010. Share Point Server 2010 comes only in a 64-bit configuration, which means your server(s) will need to support Windows Server 2008 Standard (SP2). The full list of software requirements can be found on Microsoft's site, but we have summarized the major requirements below: Windows Server 2008 R2 ($680+ USD list price) Microsoft Office Share Point Server 2010 (list price not available yet) SQL Server 2008 Express with SP1 (free) or any higher edition of SQL Server 2008 (list prices vary) If you plan to make your Access 2010 web application available over the public Internet (not just your internal intranet), you will need to license 'Microsoft SharePoint Server 2010 for Internet Sites, Standard Edition,' instead of the standard edition. Microsoft Access 2010 is all about simplicity. Access 2010 empowers you to make the most of your information—even if you're not a database expert. And, through newly added Web databases, it amplifies the power of your data, making it easier to track, report, and share with others. Your data will never be further away than your closest Web browser. Amazon.com Microsoft Access 2010 is all about simplicity, with ready-to-go templates to get you going and powerful tools that stay relevant as your data grows. Out-of-the box templates and reusable components make Access 2010 a fast and simple database solution. Get started in just a few clicks. Find new built-in templates you can start using without customization, or select templates from Office.com and customize them to meet your needs. Build your databases with new modular components using new Application Parts and add prebuilt Access components for common tasks to your database in a few simple clicks. Create more impactful forms and reports Access 2010 brings you the innovative tools you'd expect from Microsoft Office to help you easily create professional, informative forms and reports. Conditional formatting now supports data bars and you can now manage your conditional formatting rules from a single intuitive view. The addition of Office themes in Access 2010 gives you the ability to coordinate numerous database objects in just a couple clicks and makes formatting a breeze. Get easier access to the right tools at the right time Locate the commands you need when you want them and where you want them. Easily customize the improved Ribbon to make the commands you need most accessible. Create custom tabs or even customize built-in tabs. With Access 2010, you're in control. Manage your database and obtain a faster, more direct route to your database tools from the new Microsoft Office Backstage view. The Backstage view replaces the traditional File menu in all Office 2010 applications to provide a centralized, organized space to manage your database and customize your Access experience. Add automation and complex expressions without writing a line of code Access 2010 empowers you to be your own developer by bringing you simplified and easy-to-use tools—even if you consider yourself a database novice. The enhanced Expression Builder greatly simplifies your formulas and expressions with IntelliSense. Reduce errors and spend more time focusing on building your database. With the revamped Macro Designer, it's now even easier for you to add basic logic to your database. If you're an experienced Access user, you'll find the enhancements are more intuitive for creating complex logic and enable you to extend your database application Get a centralized landing pad for your data Access 2010 offers easy ways to bring your data together and increase work quality. Include Web Services and Microsoft SharePoint 2010 Business Connectivity Services data right in the applications you build. You can now connect to data sources via newly added Web Service protocol. Import and link data from a broad range of other external sources such as Microsoft Excel, Microsoft SQL Server, Microsoft Outlook, and more. Or, collect and update your data via e-mail—no server required. Access your database in new ways Newly added Access Services on Microsoft SharePoint Server 2010 enables you to make your databases available on the Web with new Web databases. Start collaborating right away. Post your databases online and then access, view, and edit them from the Web. Users without an Access client can open Web forms and reports via a browser and their changes are automatically synchronized. Whether you're a large corporation, small-business owner, nonprofit organization, or if you're just looking for more efficient ways to manage your personal information, Access 2010 makes it easier to get what you need done more quickly, with more flexibility, and with better results. 1 This feature requires Microsoft SharePoint Server 2010 to publish and share a Web database. 2 Support for Microsoft SharePoint 2010 Business Connectivity Services is configured in SharePoint Server 2010.
